

The 2008 “financial crisis” in the United States was a systemic fraud in which the wealthy finance capitalists stole trillions of public dollars. No one was jailed for this crime, the largest theft of public money in history.

Instead, the rich forced working people across the globe to pay for their “crisis” through punitive “austerity” programs that gutted public services and repealed workers’ rights. Austerity was named “Word of the Year” for 2010.

This documentary explains the nature of capitalist crisis, visits the protests against austerity measures, and recommends revolutionary paths for the future.

Special attention is devoted to the crisis in Greece, the 2010 G20 Summit protest in Toronto, Canada, and the remarkable surge of solidarity in Madison, Wisconsin.

The film features original interviews with:

Chris Hedges, author of Death of the Liberal Class

Derrick Jensen, author of Endgame

Michael Hardt, co-author of Empire

Richard J.F. Day, author of Gramsci Is Dead: Anarchist Currents in the Newest Social Movements

Leo Panitch, author of In and Out of Crisis: The Global Financial Meltdown and Left Alternatives

David McNally, author of Global Slump: The Economics and Politics of Crisis and Resistance

Peter Gelderloos, author of How Nonviolence Protects The State

The film also features Naomi Klein, Matt Taibbi and David Graeber.

Directed by Michael Truscello. Running time: 100 minutes.

Presented by Circle-Eh Pictures.

www.CapitalismIsTheCrisis.net

Capitalism is not in crisis.

Capitalism
Is The Crisis.

Radical Politics in the Age of Austerity

Their crisis. Our problem.

